

Gas Operations

SSY branches out into LPG and ammonia segments

Adis Ajdin • October 31, 2024 🔥 256 📖 1 minute read

London-headquartered shipbroking group SSY is expanding into LPG and ammonia markets and has appointed Thorstein Bergersen as head of the Copenhagen-based department.

The LPG expert will join SSY in November together with brokers Emil Ponnert and Amit Kalhans.

Bergersen's career in the LPG sector covers previously held senior roles at Yara, Ultragas, Maersk and most recently as a partner at Navigare Capital.

Stanko Jekov, SSY managing partner said: "LPG has for a long time been a missing piece of the puzzle for SSY. Over the past few years we have been monitoring the market closely to find a suitable entry point... Adding LPG and Ammonia to SSY's suite of services is an important milestone for us, as we continue to grow and diversify our business. Both markets have seen exciting developments over the last few years and the future looks increasingly interesting and diverse. SSY wants to be a significant player in this ever evolving space and today's announcement is a very important first step towards that."

#United Kingdom

